HADDAD WINS RE-ELECTION COUNCIL INCUMBENTS LOSE

Two-year term for top city job apparently wins

Mayor Lou Haddad will apparently serve a two-year term, although it wasn't absolutely clear at 4 a.m. Wednesday when the News-Sentinel was forced to go to press.

At that hour, three precincts were still being counted. Final returns in the chart below will appear in next week's newspaper

The issue not nearly so clear-cut on the matter of whether the old city hall should be traded for the Pit. Fewer than 40 votes separated the Yes and No votes with Precincts B, D and G still uncounted. The No's led 733-694. Voters did, however, think it all right for the council to sell the old city hall.

The school district's sex education program and whether to lower the voting age to 18 troubled voters the most. Opponents of lowering the voting age led slightly while proponents of sex education were ahead.

The most decisively trounced measures were legalizing marijuana and changing the name of Seaside.

Voters solidly opposed raising property taxes to build and buy a library east of Fremont.

LITTLE BIT

...on most anything

Three o'clock in the morning following an election is no time to write about it, especially when returns on the ballot propositions and advisory measures still aren't completed.

We could say the Anti-Establishment has lost its Anti, but that wouldn't be nice. We could say Mayor Lou Haddad is up a creek, but Ross, Murray, McGrath and Mrs. Carey may not be dam builders.

Maybee we'd just better drag up that old cliche that urges all combatants to try to heal the wounds of bitter battle and send our city on the road to recovery.

Any, it was a good election because everyone had to take a little bitter with the sweet, even one voter whose ballot ignored everything except two of the straw measures. Apparently the only things really important in the whole election to this balloter were the legalizing of pot and lowering the voting age to 18; could be right.

Every year when we have a chance to look over the statistical report of the Monterey County Schools, we get sick. This year we hope our illness is contagious.

There are three unified school districts on the Peninsula: Ours, the MPUSD, embracing Monterey, Seaside, Fort Ord and Marina -- Carmel with the valley included -- and Pacific Grove.

The MPUSD has three times the total enrollment of the other two combined: MPUSD - 18,806, Carmel - 3,129 and PG - 3,819.

Mostly the way we pay for those students' education is through the property tax, and to a degree the amount we pay is determined by the total assessed valuation of the property in our school district.

Now take a look at the assessed valuation of the three districts. The MPUSD is the largest, naturally, with $110,289,165, but take a gander at Carmel -- a whopping $88,049,461. PG's is $40,994,260.

That means that there's more than $28,000 behind each Carmel student, more than $10,000 behind each PG student and less than $6,000 behind each MPUSD student.

(Now you begin to get some inkling why MPUSD and PG have to go after tax overrides.)

If you took the total assessed valuation of the Peninsula - $239,332,886 - and divide the total number of students into it -- 25,754 -- you get a little more than $9,000 behind each student.

Oh, well, you all get the idea of what we're suggesting the school districts of the Peninsula do, and it won't work; so forget it. Consolidation would help spread the wealth a bit, but that would discriminate against the richies too much, and we couldn't have that.

Elderly Seaside and Sand City residents who can't afford transportation to and from the market each week are being offered an assist by the operators of the GI Coffeehouse in Seaside.

The Coffeehouse staff has set aside Wednesdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. for the next two months to drive senior citizens to buy food. Although they know there are other persons living in the city who need transportation, the Coffeehouse has asked that only persons 60 or over or retired respond. They may call 394-8485 for an appointment.

Operators of the Coffeehouse said they will give the program a two-month trial period before deciding how to proceed. They said surveys indicate the lack of transportation for the elderly as one of the most pressing problems among the poor in Seaside. They note that many oldsters don't get a sufficient diet merely because they must walk to and from the market, and therefore buy only light foods that often aren't nutritious enough.

Mrs. Jerry McGrath proclaims council winner.

Mayor beats Ross; Carey, McGrath elected in sweep

Mayor Lou Haddad won a decisive re-election victory over Councilman Steve Ross Tuesday, but watched his two incumbent Council supporters go down to defeat.

In the heaviest turnout in a local election in more than 10 years 57.3 per cent of the registered voters made it to the polls -- Jerry McGrath and Mrs. Pearl Carey won the two council seats.

Councilman Bud Houser missed his re-election bid by only 37 votes in a see-saw battle with Mrs. Carey that wasn't decided until Cabrillo School turned in its final results after midnight.

The election results were interpreted as a victory for Anti-Establishment campaigners despite Haddad's comparatively easy victory. Ross is in mid-term of his four-year council tenure. With the other councilman, Oliver Murray, the new line-up pits the mayor on one side of the political fence against Ross, Murray, McGrath and Mrs. Carey.

For example, all have opposed Haddad's Laguna Grande plan for visitor-commercial development of the lake area. All, too, have opposed his favored location of a new library adjacent to city hall.

The cliffhanger between Mrs. Carey and Houser started to develop about 10 p.m. when three precincts were still tallying returns. All had begun counting the full ballot, including the advisory measures, but two switched to counting only the candidates' races.

Mrs. Pearl Carey flashes victory sign.

With Precincts G at King Junior High, D at Fremont Junior High and E at Cabrillo School, Houser held a 21 vote lead, 863-842. But then King was completed and Mrs. Carey grabbed 354 votes to Houser's 96 and took what looked like a commanding lead, 1,196 - 959.

Houser reversed the trend and began eroding Mrs. Carey's margin as his home precinct being counted at Fremont Junior High began coming in. When it was completed Houser had pulled to within seven votes again, 1,333 - 1,326.

All that remained was Cabrillo where Mrs. Carey had maintained a 20 - 30 vote margin throughout the counting. The 149 she tallied there gave her the final 1,482 victory.

The other insurgent, McGrath, led the council voting almost from the start. He was top council vote-getter in only three precencts -- H at Covell, E at Cabrillo and F at the Youth Center -- but in all others managed to run second or third.

Ross took an early lead from Haddad when only Precincts H at Covell and C at Noche Buena had reported results, but then Haddad began pulling away.

Ross managed victories in only two precincts -- C at Noche Buena, his own, and G at King Junior High. Between them he piled up 635 of his total vote. He lost by only 15 votes at F in the Youth Center and by 25 in E at Cabrillo.

The mayor, on the other hand, had a landslide margin in his home precinct B at Ord Terrace where he picked up 386 votes to Ross's 144 and in D at Fremont Junior High where he had 414 to Ross's 108. That gave Haddad 800 votes in those two precincts.

In her victory statement Mrs. Carey said: "I wish to thank the people of Seaside who have voted for me and also wish to assure those that did not, that I will keep my campaign promises and represent the best interests of all the people of Seaside.

"It is quite apparent that people of Seaside wanted a change, not only of policies of the city but also in the attitudes of public office.

BOB WOOD REPORTS

A Weekly Column By The 34th District Assemblyman

Having recovered sufficiently from the pneumonia bug and with spring just around the corner I moved back onto the good old boat and now my backyard, again, is the Sacramento River. The other morning I woke up to the call of sea gulls (it sounded good to hear them as we are probably 75 miles from the ocean). However, they didn't stay long; and they didn't leave a note as to why they left, but when one sees the color of the Sacramento River and one knows that most of our principal rivers throughout the United States, including the Sacramento, are the thoroughfare for waste prducts from industrial and chemical discharges to raw sewage, a person can soon understand why the beautiful Sacramento River is forced to show the color of her dirty linen and why the pretty white (rinso blue) sea gulls didn't stay very long. I hope that those same sea gulls won't give up but will return again some day, because I think the worm has turned and man is beginning to make a sincere effort to change a way of life which probably all of us are , or have been, guilty to some degree.

Remember a few years ago when there was a bg furor over atomic power plants or nuclear generated facilities of any kind; in spite of some protests several pgants were installed, and after several years of operation the engineers and even some conservation minded people are beginning to realize that they may be less of a hazard than our fossil fuel power plants (those burning oil) and the accompanying danger of their pollution. In the case of nuclear powered facilities the old stigma involved in radiation leaks or the naive conviction that the facility will blow up, has not proven to be the case. A joint committee on electrical needs here in Sacramento has received a report from the Stte Resources Agency that ten new power plants, six in northern California, four in southern California, will likely be needed in the next twenty years. If I recall there was considerable tlk a year or so ago that possibly one of the new plants might be located in the Moss Laanding industrial area. As far as I know, this has never been confirmed. I think most of us realize that ecology is the key work with a new awakening of our citizens to the environment and their demand for safe guards for protecting it. The problem, however, is that while people enjoy and even depend on having power available when they turn on a switch nobody wants to have a generator facility nearby. TIt should always be put "over there" -close enough for benefit bu far enough away that it can't be seen or heard. This new joint committee on atomic development have a tough problem ahead. They must determine the actual needs for electrical power, and also decide under what criteria the new power facility should be located and constructed. They will have to review and approve all sites for the location of nuclear or gas power generating plants. The legislation would place major emphasis on integration of the plants into the ecology of the proposed location.
Enuf for now--

LETTERS

Open letter to
Mrs. John Mitchell, wife of the Attorney General of the U.S.

I have just read of your public comments about Sen. Fullbright and the Carswell vote in the Senate.

There is a growing tendency in America to "hop on the bandwagon" of popular causes, and to get off the bandwagon as quietly as possible when a cause is no longer popular.

The civil rights issue was such a cause. Others were and are the idea of stopping communism by intervening in Asia, getting to the moon ahead of the Russians, showing more concern for criminals than for the victims, etcetera.

The big one everyone wants to join now is the fight against pollution, and the one becoming most unpopular is the Vietnam debacle.

In between is the civil rights issue. Most of the politicians hopped on the civil rights wagon showed very little or no interest in anybody's rights until a couple of prominent American political families discovered in the late 1950's that the colored vote was important.

Since that time, as you may have observed, the candidates who could promise the most for minority groups were the candidates most likely to succeed, and woe unto those who had no promises to offer.

Until the pollution and crime and nuclear war issues force the civil rights issue aside, or until Senate voting can be done by secret ballot, Mr. Nixon will find it virtually impossible to load the Supreme Court with candidates not openly committed to civil rights causes.

Two other major factors play a part. First, disregarding completely the civil rights issue or whether the candidates were from the north or south Mr. Nixon's choices up until now have been something less than the best the country has to offer. There are probably at least a thousand men he could have appointed who would have been more acceptable in all-around terms to the American public as a whole.

Second, there are a number of lawmakers in both parties who often vote for what they think is right, even though such action is not approved by party leadership.

The easy route and the most profitable politically is the go-along policy. Senator George Murphy, for example, consistently votes along party directive lines, even though he must often be fully aware that his vote is not in the best interests of America's future.

Gov. Kirk of Florida, Sen. Cranston and Sen. Goodell, among others, may disagree with each other or may make the Administration or other interest unhappy, but they have the courage to do what they personally think is right.

Sen. Fullbright had to make such a choice, and perhaps his choice will not be politically profitable in Arkansas. However, it is a ray of hope that we have lawmakers willing to put personal convictions ahead of political expediency.

Of 120 million eligible voters in America, over half are women, and yet very few women really get interested in politics, and fewer yet run for public office. Thus, it is a hopeful sign when women do speak out on issues, because much of our country's trouble stems from the general public's lack of interest and knowledge in political issues.

A woman bearing a child this year may express great concern five years from now about school busing, or ten years from now about sex education, but if she feels any concern about what else happens to that child before he retires on social security in 2035 A.D., she probably won't express it publicly.

It should not only be a right but a moral obligation for women to become involved in politics.
Sincerely yours.
M.J. Vercoe, Pres.

Human Values

Smokers cutting back

California's trend in cigarette sales indicates smokers are heeding the nationwide educational program warning them of potential diseases and shortened life span resulting from habitual smoking.

"In 1969, California's per capita consumption of tax-paid cigarettes dropped to 122 packs -- four packs less than in 1969," said George Reilly, Chairman of the State Board of Equalization.

"In 1968, Californians smoked 2,428 million packs of tax paid cigarettes while in 1969 the number dropped to 2,380 million despite a population increase of 300,000."

"Nationwide, smokers consumed about 25.7 billion packs in 1969, reflecting a decrease comparable to that experienced in California."

"Total excise taxes on cigarettes in California raised $428,400,000 last year. The state tax of ten cents per pack produced $238,000,000 of which 30 per cent or $71,400 000 was distributed to cities and counties. The federal tax of eight cents a pack accounted for $190,-400 000."

State taxation of cigarettes across the nation varies from 18 cents a pack in Pennsylvania to a low of two cents in North Carolina. Twenty-two states are taxing cigarettes at a higher rate than California. The highest next to Pennsylvania are Connecticut, 16 cents; Texas, 15 1/2 cents; Florida, 15 cents; and New Jersey and Wisconsin, 14 cents.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q) I thought Congress lowered the surtax to 5 percent but the 1040 tax form still shows it as 10 percent. What is it?

A) For 1969, the income tax surcharge rate is 10 percent. For the first six months of 1970, the rate is 5 percent before expiring June 30, 1970.

Taxpayers filing returns for 1969 will, depending on the amount of income tax, use the surcharge tables or percentage method shown on page T–1 in their 1040 tax packages to figure the surcharge. In figuring estimated declarations for 1970, the effective surcharge rate is 2½ percent since the surcharge expires at mid-year.

Q) The address shown on the label in my tax package is wrong. Should I still use it?

A) Yes, correct the address right on the label and send it back on the form you file. By using the label you can avoid any processing delay due to a missing or inaccurate Social Security number. This has been a major cause of delayed refunds this year.

Q) I had my 65th birthday last month. Can I take an extra exemption for age on my 1969 return?

A) No, your age for exemption purposes is what it was on the last day of the tax year for which the return is filed.

Q) What schedules do I have to send in with my tax return?

A) Attach to your Form 1040 only those schedules on which you are required to make entries to file a complete return. However, if you figured your tax on Schedule T you do not have to send this schedule in with your return unless you claim retirement income, investment or foreign tax credit or owe self-employment tax.

Q) When is the next payment on my maid's social security tax due?

A) The deadline is April 30 for the January, February and March quarter of 1970.

Q) How should I make out my check?

A) Make checks payable to the Internal Revenue Service. Put your Social Security number on the check so that it can be identified should it become separated from your return during processing.

If you are making two payments at the same time, it is advisable to make separate checks. Note on your check or money order what the payment is for as well as giving your Social Security number.

Q) I owe $65 on my 1969 return. Do I have to file an estimated return for 1970?

A) If you expect to owe $40 or more when you file your 1970 tax return, then you may have to file an estimated tax declaration and pay estimated tax. Read the Form 1040–ES instructions, which can be obtained from your local IRS office, to see if you have to file.

Q) My bank sent me a statement showing how much I received in interest on my savings account. Do I send this in with my return?

A) No, this statement should not be sent in with your tax return. Enter the total amount of interest you received in 1969 on line 13 of your Form 1040. If the amount is over $100, list the amounts you received in interest from all sources on Schedule B and send it in with your tax return.

Q) Why must a wife sign a joint return when she has no income of her own?

A) A tax return is a legal document and must be signed to be complete. On joint returns, husband and wife both must sign.

Q) How can you tell if I figured my tax right, if I don't have to send in the Schedule T I used to work it out?

A) Tax computations are verified by computers from the information shown on the return. If a mistake is discovered, the taxpayer is sent a bill for additional tax or a refund depending on the nature of the mistake.

It takes longer to process returns with errors so double check your figures before sending in your return.

Q) Will it take me any longer to get my refund this year? In the past I used the old card form.

A) No, it takes no longer to process a refund with the new Form 1040 than it did when there were both the 1040 and 1040A.

Returns filed in April, however, take longer to process than those filed earlier since so many taxpayers wait until the last minute. All refunds should be processed and the checks issued within 10 weeks from the date the return was filed if the return is accurate and complete.

Consumer Power

By Yvonne Earnst

Questions are coming in on "refunding," so let's cover some of them this week.

'Is refunding legal?" Oh, yes, Offering refunds is just one type of advertising - with the advertiser devoting part of his budget to rewarding customers who use his product.

Refund offers are not the same as money back guarantees. The latter is offered to customers that are not happy with a product. But refund offers are intended to stimulate sales, and reward customers who are happy with a product.

Repeatedly collecting on money back guarantees would be unethical, and perhaps illegal, but collecting refunds from advertising offers--within the rules- is definitely legal.

"What does it mean when an offer says 'Expires in 30 days?" Offers advertised as expiring in 30 or 60 days or 90 days are printed that way for the advertiser's convenience. He can begin and end campaigns in various parts of the country without going to the added expense of reprinting forms each time. He can also close an offer whenever he wishes -- usually when the allotted funds for the campaign are exhausted.

Whenever sending in a request for a refund in this category, I usually add a note asking that the company use a definite closing date in their next campaign as consumers have no way of knowing when the offer will close.

What happens if the offer is closed? Usually, the company sends back the proofs-of-purchase, with a form letter explaining that the offer is now clased. Sometimes they are not returned, but this is very rare.

As a rule then, it generally pays to send for refunds with this 30, 60 or 90 day (or no specified date) clause, because you will receive the money in 95% of the pampaigns. If you hold back on sending for these refunds, then you will lose a good bit of refunding income.

"What are form exchanges?" Exchanges are, for the most part, enterprising housewives who decided to formalize refund form trading among refunders. They advertise in most refund bulletins. QuickSilver and Refund Reports do not accept such advertising, but using their editorial judgment, list a few exchanges which they feel to be reputable. Their judgment is respected in refunding circles.

Most exchanges charge a "shuffling" of "handling" fee ranging from 10¢ to 50¢, which is reasonable, considering the labor involved. In feneral, the best way to participate in form exchanges at first is to send no forms to trade but simply the cash fee requested. Stripping the Monterey area stores of forms to send in to form exhcnages is unfair to your fellow refunders. There are plenty of suppliers in metropolitan areas to stock the form exchanges, and there are too few forms, as it is in the Monterey area. For the time and lavor involved it is more reasonable to send no forms.

Avoid going "head over heels" in sending to form exchanges. You will only eat up your refunding profits if you do. Choose two or three to try in the beginning, and compare the results. Thn, stick with the best one, sending one or to requests a month.

Two of the refund publications reviewed in an earlier column, Refund Reports and FireFly, operate form exchanges for subscribers, and both are good exchanges.

Next week, we will discuss how to make up a request sheet for form exchanges -- and take up more questions on the subject.

LAW IN ACTION

PARKING PROBLEMS

When you park your car, are you renting the space? Are you depositing it with the garageman? Or does the parking lot give you space as a free courtesy?

These are vital legal questions if someone steals or damages your car.

Take Miss Davis, a model. She parked her car in a public garage, got a claim check with lots of writing on it. Like you, she didn't read it, but she kept it.

When she came back, the car was gone. Apparently another garageman had given it to a thief. Miss Davis reported the theft, and the police found the car a week later, damaged. Her clothes and wigs in the trunk were gone.

After nearly a year she sued the garage for $2,000, but it said the claim check limited its liability to $250 and she had not brought her claim to court within 90 days as the law required.

Yet the court ruled for Miss Davis. The garage had not called Miss Davis' attention to any limits on its liability and was at fault for giving her car to the wrong person. Miss Davis got what she had lost not just $250.

A garage can limit its liability to $250 if it puts up proper signs conspicuously at each entrance to the parking lot and calls the parkers' attention to limits of liability on the claim check.

In other garages, the parker parks his own car, locks it, and assumes greater responsibility for its care. When he merely rents a space, the garage has less responsibility. Its men do not deliver or park the car. Thus, if a negligent parker or a thief damages the car, the garage is usually not to blame. It merely has the duty to act reasonably in caring for the rental spaces.

When you leave your car with someone for parking or another purpose, be sure of the responsibility of the person with whom you leave it

MPUSD seeks aid for festival

Public support is being requested to assist with production costs of the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District's seventh annual Fine Arts Festival , scheduled Wednesday and Thursday, May 13-14 at Monterey County Fairgrounds. Theme this year is the 1970 Bicentennial.

The festival usually involves more than 1000 student participants, grades 4-12, in drama dance, and instrumental and vocal music numbers, plus an exhibit of arts and crafts and art in action, kindergarten and grades 1-12. Traditionally, the festival has sparked student and community interest in personal achievement in the fine arts and in cultural appreciation.

Recent announcement of loss of some $613,000 anticipated federal grants under public Law 874 required severe budget cuts of many MPUSD projects, including the festival. Without about $500 in donations from the community, the matinee performances, the large-group musical presentations will have to be eliminated, MPUSD officials said.

The cost of busing school bands and orchestras for two afternoon performances is the major expense for which contributions are solicited.

Any individuals or service groups in the community may send donations of any amount to MPUSD, Fine Arts Festival, P.O. Box 1031, Monterey, 93940. Checks should be made payable to Melvin Isenberger, who is assistant superintendent of business services. All funds received will be credited to the Fine Arts Festival account.

Requests for direct public contribution to a specific school project are unprecedented in the school district experience.

Seca this weekend

The 1970 Trans American Sedan Championship season opens at Laguna Seca Raceway this weekend, April 18 & 19.

According to Mark Donohue, the 1969 champion, it will be a wide-open race, with no clear-cut pre-race favorite.

Donohue switched to Javelin this year from his 1969 Camaro ride. Jim Hall and Ed Leslie of Monterey will drive for Camaro this year, while Peter Revson pilots the second Sunoco/Javelin.

Indy winner Parnelli Jones, should be a strong contender in his Bud Moore Mustang. George Follmer is also expected to drive for Ford. The articulate ace, Sam Posey, will drive an Autodynamics Dodge Challenger. Equally articulate and skilled is Jerry Titus, for Pontiac Firebird. Chrysler has signed one of the world's all-time greats, Dan Gurney, for their other entry, Barracuda.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Q I applied for Medicare in October 1969 when I was 65. Since I have never worked under Social Security, I have only medical insurance coverage. My sister is two years older than I am and has never worked under Social Security. She has both parts of Medicare. Why is my case different?

A. People who were 65 before 1968 are not required to have worked under Social Security to qualify.

Q. Even though I'll be 65 later this year, I'm not going to retire from my job. Is there any reason I should contact the Social Security office at age 65?

A. There certainly is - don't forget Medicare. Remember you don't have to retire to get medical protection from your Social Security. Sign up for Medicare two or three months before you are 65. At the same time you can find out what your Social Security check will be when you do retire.

Q. I am receiving home health visits covered by Medicare. Do I apply for the payment from Medicare or does the home health agency?

A. The home health agency makes the claim for payment from Medicare. This is true whether the services are covered under the hospital insurance or under the medical insurance part of Medicare.

He is a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society in London. His film "The Last Cannibals" was an award winner at the International Film Festival in Edinburgh. County youth coalition formed

More than 50 youths attended a meeting last week to form Monterey County's first youth coalition.

Francisco Garcia, Director of Salinas Warlords Youth Organization, said the youth coalition will "give the youth the say where their money goes, not the adults."

He added, "We are reinforcing the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) Guidelines that say youth from 16 to 25 can submit budgets for their own programs."

By forming the coalition, the youth groups will be incorporated as a delegate agency under the Monterey County Anti-Poverty Coordinating Council, Inc., according to Garcia.

The young representatives met at the Salinas Warlords Center, 242 Williams Road, to plan a county-wide youth council.

Youth groups represented included the South County Youth Council with members from Gonzales, Greenfield, Soledad and King City; the Salinas Warlords, the Mexican - American Youth Organization (MAYO), the Mexican - American Youth Association (MAYA), and the Movimiento Estudiantil Chicano de Aztlan (MECHA), all from the Salinas Union School District; and Seaside's Young Adults For Action; Jua; Operation Shoe Strings; and Community Work Center; and North County Youth.

This initial meeting was conducted by Steve Jimenez and Joe Mitchell of the Western Community Action Training, Inc., Oakland, and Mike Murray, student from the University of California, Berkeley.

The next organizational meeting will be Saturday, April 18 at the Warlords Center. The agenda will include discussion of the articles of incorporation, by-laws, and size and composition of the board.

Other recommendations to be considered include that adults attend meetings only when invited; that the age limit be 16 to 25; that board members must show proof of age, and that a committee be formed to investigate youth groups seeking membership in the coalition.

Mrs. Carey, McGrath oust Houser, Schmidt

"I can assure you that no problem is too small to give my personal attention.

"I am looking forward to working with McGrath and the other two members of the council and my good friend Steve Ross in order that we can carry out the mandate of the people.

In his victory statement McGrath said: "I'm grateful for the vote of confidence the people of Seaside have given me.

"I sincerely promise them representative government and more open meetings.

"I would like to encourage people to come forward and volunteer themselves for commission jobs that have been held by the same people for the past 11 years.

"Its time for a change, and that change refers to all aspects of city commissions

Although visibly upset by the failure of his slate to also win re-election, Haddad noted his 1736 votes and paraphrased a John F. Kennedy speech, "JFK said 'Let us begin;' I say, Let us continue."

Haddad said he was perplexed by the library issue, contending that voters knew he favored the city hall site, and at the same time elected Mrs. Carey and McGrath, who oppose it.

He also expressed surprise at the margin of McGrath's victory, but indicated it would be a good lesson. "You just can't beat knocking on doors," he said. McGrath's trademark in electioneeting has been door-to-door campaigning.

Schmidt, saying it was a "good race," congratulated his opponents, but reminded them that they now are the Establishment. "The Devil's Advocates can now start throwing rocks at them, and I wish them luck. I think they're going to need it," Schmidt said. He said he would continue to serve the city in whatever capacity he is asked.

Houser said he wanted to congratulate the winners, but indicated he wasn't sure if it was really clear who they were yet. He said he would wait until Wednesday morning to decide whether to ask for a recount. "If it had been 50 to 60 votes, that would have been one thing," Houser said, "but 37 is another matter."

CHARLIE WILLIAMS prepares a tee shot as Theron Polite waits in practice for this weekend's Central California District Elks Golf Tournament at Salinas Fairway Golf Course. Other local Elks scheduled to compete are Joe Cooley, Sam Thomas, Doug Rentie, John Glass, Ed Turner, Alpha Dansby, William Hill.
